

Palgrave Studies in Literary Journalism

Series Editors:

Sue Joseph, Willa McDonald & Matthew Ricketson

Literary journalism is a vibrant and fast growing field, increasingly attracting international academic attention due to the unique way narrative journalism communicates matters of national and international importance to readers. Palgrave Studies in Literary Journalism provides a pioneering home to scholarship about the field in the first series of its kind. The book series is organised under the multi-disciplinary umbrella of literary journalism studies into four recognisable types: theoretical monographs, historical monographs, edited collections, monographs about practice and pedagogy.

Interested in submitting a proposal?

Please contact the editors via email or visit the series webpage to find out more.

Sue Joseph: sue.joseph@unisa.edu.au

Willa McDonald: willa.mcdonald@mq.edu.au

Matthew Ricketson: matthew.ricketson@deakin.edu.au

Recently Published:

Ben Stubbs, Lee Mylne

Re-thinking Travel Writing: The Journey of a Genre | © 2024

What place does the travel writing genre hold in a post-COVID world? Stubbs and Mylne examine the problems and solutions apparent for travel writing as it engages in a period of re-thinking. With decades of experience as academics and travel writing practitioners, they offer a unique perspective on the future of the genre in an ecologically fraught, less mobile, and more uncertain world.

link.springer.com/series/17131